REINVENT, REVIVE AND RESTORE

Hosted by:

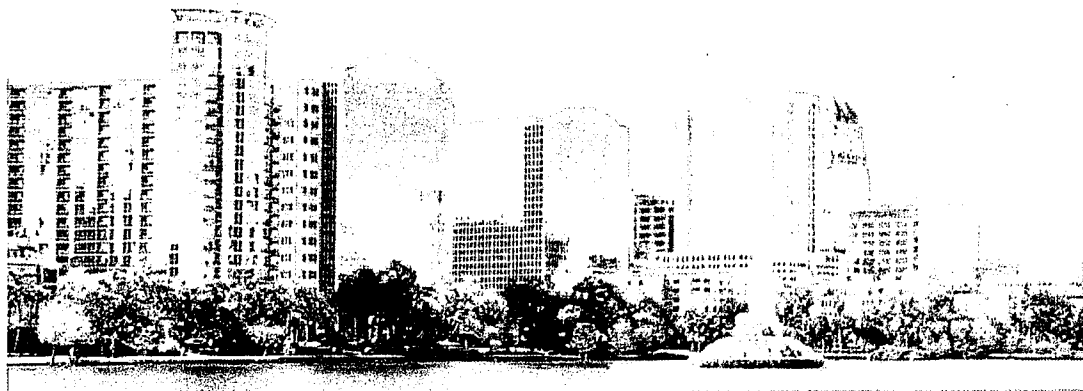

NACCED's 37th Annual Conference and Training takes place in Orange County, Florida, September 29 – October 3, 2012. Located in Central Florida, Orange County is known worldwide for its climate and tourist attractions. However, Orange County is also recognized as the engine of growth among Florida's counties. In recent years, it has become a fast growing community attracting medical and research facilities, high tech- industries, and recognized educational institutions. Orange County is known as the epicenter of the modeling, simulation and training industry. Thanks to the strong collaboration between the community, academia and government, Orange County has everything you want a great community to have. With a population of 1.2 million and over 903 square miles, Orange County has a 90 percent urban and 10 percent rural spread.

Orange County's Housing and Community Development Division, the conference host, has been a participant in the U. S. Department of Housing and Urban Development key grant programs for more than 30 years. They include the Community Development Block Grant, Emergency Solutions Grant, HOME Grant, rental assistance, homeless housing grants and the Neighborhood Stabilization Program focused on improving the lives and neighborhoods of its low-and moderate-income households. This makes it a perfect laboratory for urban county practitioners and others to learn about best practices.

The 37th Annual Conference and Training will be held at The Peabody Hotel, a custom built hotel catering to the meetings and conventions industry nationwide. Since opening its doors in 1986, the Peabody Hotel has established itself as the convention hotel of choice for the nation's professional meeting planners. The Hotel is further enhanced by the whimsy of the Peabody Ducks and their famous march on the red carpet at 11:00 a.m. and 5:00 p.m. daily.
