NACCED's 38th Annual Community and Economic Development Conference and Training in Pima County, Ariz., provides valuable educational and networking opportunities to a diverse range of affordable housing, community and economic development professionals from both the public and private sectors.

With a population close to 1 million Pima County is a major metropolitan area. Tucson is the urban center and the largest city in the county. Pima County is unique, sharing a 131-mile international border with Mexico, and contains two sovereign nations, the Tohono O'odham and Pasqua Yaqui. The influence of many cultures is apparent in the architecture, media, dining and entertainment. Unique Native American, Mexican and modern arts and crafts are featured throughout the region, as well as in the border town Nogales, Mexico, which is 60 miles away.

Located in the Sonoran Desert, Tucson is surrounded by five mountain ranges that offer many opportunities for recreation in national forests and local parks and preserves. October is a perfect time to visit Arizona. Temperatures in the Tucson area will be in the mid-80s with blue skies and vibrant sunsets. Pima County is proud to be this year's host.

Like many regions across the United States, southern Arizona is rebounding from a deep recession, which has impacted the housing, job market and business community. The conference speakers and workshops will focus on the effective tools that jurisdictions have implemented in their affordable housing and community and economic development programs that led to the revitalization of neighborhoods and creation of job opportunities.

Session Descriptions

Pre-Conference Field Trip – Ajo, Arizona

This will be a NACCED first; an overnight excursion to revisit one of Pima County's Target Areas – Historic Ajo. The International Sonoran Desert Alliance (ISDA) will host NACCED members for a revisit to the artist workspace at the Curley School and recently renovated Railroad Depot and South Plaza improvements as well as discuss the creative place-making initiatives funded by the National Endowment for the Arts. Food, lodging and transportation will be arranged by ISDA, NACCED and Pima County. A separate fee of $150 to cover expenses applies.

Pre-Conference Workshop – Tools for Managing Federal Grants in the Current Environment

Presented by seasoned practitioners, this session will discuss such issues as managing multiple grant years, managing draws and expenditures, handling program income and, loan servicing. Vendors will also demonstrate proprietary software products that are now available to manage programs.

Community Development Financial Institutions/ New Markets Tax Credits

Established by Congress in 2000, the New Markets Tax Credit Program is intended to stimulate new or increased investment in business and real estate projects in distressed low-income communities. Since its inception the program has allocated $33 billion. In the "Fiscal Cliff" avoidance law, Congress authorized two additional rounds of the program at $3.5 billion for each. This session will cover the basics of the program and the opportunity it may hold for counties to collaborate with Community Development Finance Institutions (CDFI's) and attract investments.

What Would You Do? Dealing with Failed/Delayed Projects: A Case Study (Tentative)

During the boom, it did not seem like development projects could fail. However, as demand dropped projects lagged. This session will examine a single-family development, including various decision points by local funders. This project is now succeeding under a new team and development strategy.

Brownfields Redevelopment Case Studies

As a result of the recession, interest in Brownfields projects for commercial redevelopment has lagged. This session will examine projects and strategies that are being adopted by local jurisdictions.

Demystifying Green Certification

National organizations and local governments have developed and implemented "green and sustainable" rehabilitation and building certification programs for single, multifamily and commercial development. There are many similarities and some differences. We will hear from a builder and designers who have implemented certification programs.

Targeting as a Community Development Strategy: Lessons from NSP

Targeted investments through the Neighborhood Stabilization Program have helped in the revitalization of neighborhoods. This session will feature a grantee from a major city, Phoenix, and a sub-grantee who have achieved successes in targeting the "areas of greatest need" using NSP and other funding sources.

Economic Development as Community Development

Athens-Clarke County, Ga., has combined investment in infrastructure with economic development to revitalize disadvantaged communities while creating employment for local residents. See how they've done and how it might work for your county.

Supporting CHDOs and Local Nonprofit Developers

The HOME program requires that 15% of the allocation be spent on projects developed or owned by Community Development Housing Organizations (CHDOs). The new HOME regulations will require that CHDOs now have development capacity on staff and that project underwriting be improved. In this session HOME grantees will discuss how they work with nonprofit developers to increase capacity, improve production and develop projects that are timely.

Strategically Combining Resources

As grant resources diminish it is becoming apparent that successful projects will need to be leveraged. In this session examples of how agencies can effectively combine resources to implement projects and programs will be discussed.

Public Engagement in the Planning Process

This session will provide an example of how one jurisdiction used its public participation process to determine local priorities for their community development program. There will also be a presentation of various tools and strategies that can be used to increase and enhance public participation.

Designing and Building a Green Multifamily Project: Las Abuelitas

A project developed under the auspices of the Primavera Foundation and located in South Tucson, Las Abuelitas is a multifamily housing project that was developed with Neighborhood Stabilization 2 and HOME funds to provide housing for grandparents raising grandchildren. Consisting of two- and three-bedroom units, the project will house households at 50% to 60% of median income and was built to meet the LEED Gold. The community room was built to meet Pima County's Net Zero program.

The Latest in Fair Housing

HUD is expected to promulgate a new rule containing additional requirements for grantees to affirmatively further fair housing. It is expected to provide better guidance on how to conduct an analysis of impediments to fair housing and how those impediments can be overcome. Presenters will cover the content of the rule and give examples of how it is to be implemented.

Community Land Trusts and Equity Sharing Arrangements

Presenters will discuss the basics of Community Land Trusts and Equity Sharing Arrangements between local governments and prospective homeowners through model structures being used in communities, and identify any barriers that need to be overcome including mortgage financing, management and organizational sustainability.

Coordinated Assessment and Intake for the Homeless

The HEARTH ACT mandates that Continuums of Care establish a coordinated intake and assessment system for applicants requesting assistance from local service providers. This session will provide a demonstration of systems that are being developed incorporating HMIS for intake and coordination of care.

Green and Healthy Homes

Salt Lake County has recently signed a Green and Healthy Homes Initiative (GHHI) Compact to become the 16th site nationwide to implement this new and exciting program. Presenters will share information about how the program will redefine the way the County does business when it comes to housing programs and working with its partners in program delivery. It delivers integrated and collaborative health and housing services to low-income families that more efficiently and cost-effectively implements federally funded programs. The result is that children are healthier, families have safer and more energy-efficient homes with lower utility bills, and health insurance costs decline due to fewer housing-related health issues.

Working with Local Housing Finance Agencies

Local Housing Finance Agencies have important resources – tax-exempt and taxable bonds and Low-Income Housing Tax Credits – that can be useful to counties in carrying out their affordable housing mission. Learn how these agencies function and how they potentially could be created if one does not exist in your county.

General Session: State of the Housing Market

The current trends in housing will be discussed in this session. This will include a discussion on the ongoing impact of foreclosures, availability of financing; the potential roles that can be played by local government and potentially how this impacts the GSEs and the populations we serve.

Conference – Wide Event: Pima Air and Space Museum

Our Conference-Wide Event will be held at the Pima Air & Space Museum, one of the largest air and space museums in the world, and the largest non-government funded aviation museum. The 80 acre site holds more than 300 aircraft and spacecraft including many of the most historically significant and technically advanced craft ever produced, both from the United States and throughout the world. For more information: www.Pimaair.org

Tour of the Aerospace Maintenance and Regeneration Group (AMARG) or Boneyard

Often referred to as 'The Boneyard', AMARG is an aerospace storage and maintenance facility adjoining Davis-Monthan Air Force Base in Tucson which provides a service to all branches of the US military (Air Force, Navy, Marines, Coast Guard and Army), as well as other national agencies. It is an opportunity to see a variety of aircraft in various stages of reclamation. The tour is arranged to occur prior to the Conference Wide Event at the adjacent Pima Air and Space Museum

NACCED Awards Program

At each conference NACCED presents Awards of Excellence to county agencies with exemplary projects and practices in affordable housing, community development, economic development, homeless issues, and innovation.
