The American Red Cross

and

County of Fort Bend, Texas

FOR IMMEDIATE RED CROSS ASSISTANCE

24 HOURS A DAY

7 DAYS A WEEK

I. Purpose

The purpose of this Memorandum of Understanding ("MOU") is to define a working relationship between The American Red Cross (hereinafter "Red Cross") and the Office of Emergency Management, Fort Bend County, Texas its agencies, and municipalities (hereinafter Fort Bend County, Texas), in preparing for and responding to certain disaster situations. This MOU provides the broad framework for cooperation between the Red Cross and Fort Bend County, Texas in rendering assistance and service to victims of disaster, as well as other services for which cooperation may be mutually beneficial.

II. Independence of Operations

Each party to this MOU will maintain its own identity in providing service. Each organization is separately responsible for establishing its own policies and procedures and financing its own activities.

III. Disasters Covered by this MOU

The Red Cross provides disaster services pursuant to its Bylaws and other internal policies and procedures as well as its Congressional Charter, codified at Title 36, Sections 300101-300111, of the United States Code (1998). In the Charter, Congress authorized the Red Cross "to carry out a system of national and international relief in time of peace, and apply that system in mitigating the suffering caused by pestilence, famine, fire, floods, and other great national calamities, and to devise and carry out measures for preventing those calamities."

The Red Cross role was reaffirmed in the 1974 Disaster Relief Act (Public Law 93- 288), the 1988 Robert T. Stafford Disaster Relief and Emergency Assistance Act (Public Law 100-707), and the Disaster Mitigation Act of 2000 (Public Law 106-390). The Federal law governing disaster relief, found in Title 42, Chapter 68 of the United States Code, defines "emergencies" and "major disasters" as follows:

"Emergency" means any occasion or instance for which, in the determination of the President, Federal assistance is needed to supplement State and local efforts and capabilities to save lives and to protect property and public health and safety, or to lessen or avert the threat of a catastrophe in any part of the United States.

"Major disaster" means any natural catastrophe (including any hurricane, tornado, storm, high water, wind-driven water, tidal wave, tsunami, earthquake, volcanic eruption, landslide, mudslide, snowstorm, or drought), or, regardless of cause, any fire, flood, or explosion, in any part of the United States, which in the determination of the President causes damage of sufficient severity and magnitude to warrant major disaster assistance under this chapter to supplement the efforts and available resources of States, local governments, and disaster relief organizations in alleviating the damage, loss, hardship, or suffering caused thereby.

On a local level, the Red Cross responds to all kinds of disasters, whether or not they are the subject of a presidential declaration. The disasters to which the Red Cross responds include any threatening event of such destructive magnitude and force as to dislocate people, separate family members, damage or destroy homes, or injure or kill people. A disaster produces a range and level of immediate suffering and basic human needs that cannot be promptly or adequately addressed by the affected people and impedes them from initiating and proceeding with their recovery efforts.

Some disasters are natural disasters, such as floods, tornados, hurricanes, typhoons, winter storms, tsunamis, hail storms, thunderstorms, wildfires, windstorms, epidemics, and earthquakes. Human-caused disasters, which may be intentional or unintentional, include residential fires, building collapses, transportation accidents, hazardous materials releases, explosions, and domestic acts of terrorism. All of these are within the Red Cross mission.

IV. Organization of the American Red Cross

The national headquarters of the Red Cross is located in Washington, D.C. National headquarters is responsible for implementing policies and procedures that govern Red Cross activities and providing administrative and technical supervision and guidance to the chartered units, which include chapters and blood services regions. Each chapter has certain authority and responsibility for carrying out Red Cross disaster preparedness and response activities, delivering local Red Cross services, and meeting corporate obligations within the territorial jurisdiction assigned to it. Each chapter is familiar with the hazards of the locality and surveys local resources for personnel, equipment, supplies, transportation, emergency communications, and facilities available for disaster relief. The chapter also formulates cooperative plans and procedures with local government agencies and private organizations for relief activities should a disaster occur. In carrying out their disaster preparedness and response activities, each Community Chapter coordinates with their Regional Chapter for assistance and support. The Regional Chapter coordinates their regional response with the American Red Cross Disaster Operations Center in Washington D.C. which provides immediate technical and logistical support to chapters.

Through its nationwide organization, the Red Cross coordinates its total resources for use in large disasters. Services are provided to those in need regardless of citizenship, race, religion, age, sex, disability or political affiliation. In providing disaster services, the Red Cross follows the Fundamental Principles of the International Red Cross and Red Crescent Movement.

V. American Red Cross Disaster Relief Assistance

Red Cross emergency assistance is designed to minimize the immediate suffering caused by a disaster by providing food, clothing, shelter, first aid, and other assistance to address basic human needs. Red Cross emergency assistance may be provided either as mass care, individual assistance, or a combination of the two, depending on the victims' needs. Mass care is provided through any combination of three integrated elements: 1) individual or congregate temporary public shelters; (2) fixed or mobile feeding operations, and (3) distribution of relief supplies. Individual assistance is provided to individuals and families through the purchase of needed items and/or services or referrals to other agencies and organizations that offer assistance to disaster victims at no charge. The Red Cross also processes welfare information requests. In addition to emergency assistance, the Red Cross participates in community recovery programs after major disasters.

Red Cross disaster response activities vary depending upon the nature and scope of the required response, as follows:

Mass Casualty Incidents: Mass casualty incidents are usually the result of transportation accidents, fires in high-occupancy structures, industrial accidents or similar disasters. In mass casualty disasters, the Red Cross closely coordinates with the authorities at the scene (including firefighters, police, and government agencies) and representatives of the owner/operator. Depending on the nature and scope of the disaster, the needs of the victims and workers, and the response of the owner/operator, the Red Cross may engage in a number of activities to assist victims, survivors, families of victims or survivors, emergency workers or others. These services include but are not limited to shelter, food, basic first aid, and mental health services.

Aviation Disasters: The Red Cross has a special role in major aviation disasters. Under the provisions of the Aviation Disaster Family Assistance Act of 1996 (P.L. 104-264), airlines, the National Transportation Safety Board (NTSB), and a "designated independent nonprofit organization" were given specific responsibilities with regard to coordinating the emotional care and support of the families of passengers involved in aviation disasters. The NTSB, as part of its Federal Family Assistance Plan for Aviation Disasters, has designated the Red Cross as the organization responsible for Family Care and Mental Health. The Red Cross has accepted this role and has specially trained staff on call on its "Critical response Team" (CRT) who initiate support within hours of a request from the NTSB for services.

Hazardous Material Situations: When an actual or potential hazardous material situation results in an evacuation, the Red Cross provides emergency mass care until families can return home. If public authorities deem it necessary for families to relocate permanently, the Red Cross works with other community organizations to provide temporary mass care or casework assistance.

The American Red Cross does not provide disaster assistance where government officials or agencies require building evacuation as a result of chronic deferred maintenance, code violations, radon contamination or fire hazards.

Nuclear Facility or Transportation Accidents: In the event of an evacuation due to a nuclear power plant accident or transportation accident involving radioactive materials, the Red Cross provides mass care services for the evacuees and emergency workers. The Red Cross coordinates with public health authorities with respect to health concerns and the possible need for decontamination, but the Red Cross does not engage in decontamination activities. If the Red Cross is operating evacuation shelters, evacuees and workers must undergo any necessary decontamination before they are admitted to the shelter.

Civil Disorder: Situations involving civil disorder — such as riots or hostage incidents — are not within the usual scope of the Red Cross's disaster relief activities. Nevertheless, when basic human needs are not being met as a result of civil disorder, the Red Cross may participate in community actions to supplement the efforts of civil authorities by providing mass care and other services upon request of appropriate government authorities if Red Cross resources are available. The Red Cross will provide services only in a safe and secure area.

Catastrophic Incident: A catastrophic incident, as defined by the National Response Framework, is any natural or manmade incident, including terrorism that results in extraordinary levels of mass casualties, damage or disruption, and severely affects the population, infrastructure, environment, economy, national morale and/or government functions. A catastrophic incident results in sustained national effects over a prolonged period. In a catastrophic incident, the Red Cross will work closely with appropriate state and local government and non-government partners to provide mass care, including shelter, feeding, first aid, and other assistance to address basic human needs in a safe environment.

Repatriation of U.S. Citizens and Dependents: During the emergency repatriation of U.S. citizens and dependents evacuated from foreign countries during emergencies, the Red Cross will, at designated ports of entry, cooperate with federal, state, local and voluntary agencies involved with their reception, temporary care and onward transportation, to provide shelter, feeding and basic first aid among other services.

Other Events or Situations: In the event of other unforeseen events or situations in which human suffering is involved, the Red Cross will coordinate with appropriate government and non-government partners to provide mass care, including shelter, feeding, first aid, and other assistance to address basic human needs, as resources are available to assist.
