Testimonial: Yai's Thai Kitchen

The program offered us to get us back on our feet for our business as well as help the community. We were able to promote what we do here in our family restaurant through our food. We All Eat has been helping us rebuild our livelihood from the effects of COVID.

Simply put, this has been a heaven-sent program for us to participate in and we are so fortunate for Jerome and his team to take a leap of faith with us. We wanted to get involved to maintain our business, but also help others that were affected as well by providing meals. The community has truly rallied together.

The logo for Yai's Thai Kitchen is displayed in a bold, distressed, black font. The text is arranged in three lines: "YAI'S" on the top line, "THAI" on the middle line, and "KITCHEN" on the bottom line. The font has a gritty, hand-painted appearance with visible texture and some white speckling within the black letters. The logo is centered within a white rectangular area, which is itself set against a light gray background.

With COVID, our sales dropped to an all-time low. We got involved with the We All Eat program because our sales were down. It sounded like a good way to increase sales, and it did.

Being involved in the We All Eat program has pulled us out of a downward fall from COVID back to being able to stay open. Most residents who pick up food seem very grateful with the program and say it's been a life saver to their family. It seems the program has helped us as store owners and the families in the area.

Q6: Please provide any comments that you feel would help the county in understanding the impact of the We All Eat program.

"The We All Eat program is helping both the community and restaurants. Restaurants are getting more recognition and exposure, which helps give sales volume a tremendous boost. Many restaurants have gone out of business prior to the start of this program. We are glad we stuck around to be a part of this amazing program."

"It is economically helping all. It touches, consumers, suppliers, vendors and employees, and thus is lifting the community."

"We All Eat has been a life-saving blessing for our business. As families continue to struggle, they feel some relief in knowing they don't have to worry about what to do for dinner. It's already prepared for them."

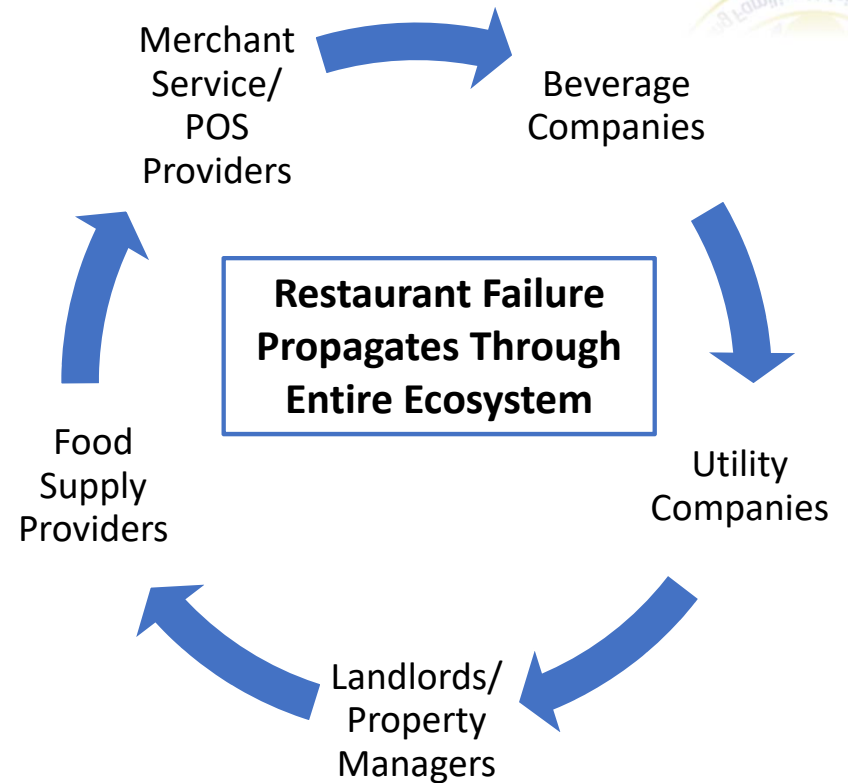

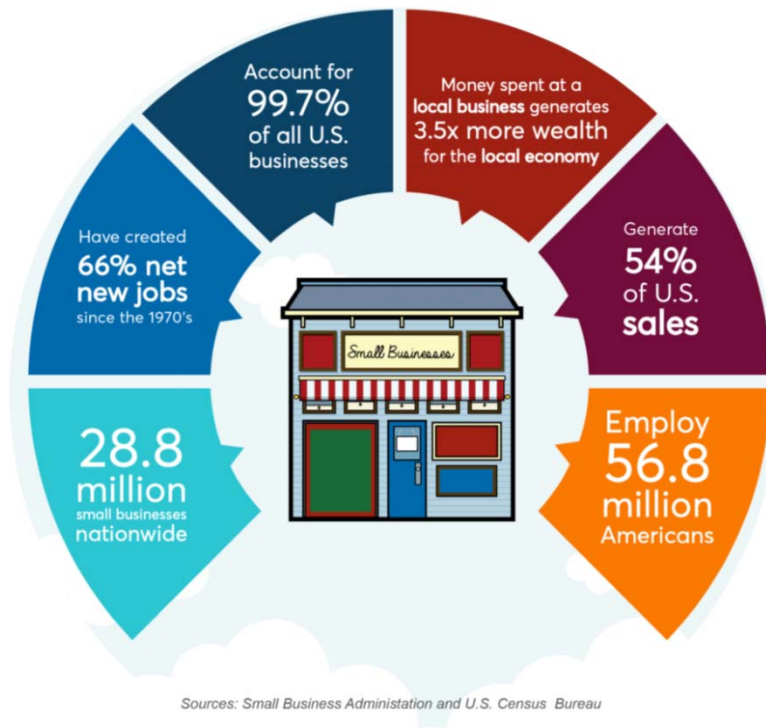

“The We All Eat program helped us to keep the business running at really bad time that started last year. Thanks to Fort Bend County that approved the We All Eat program, we are still in business.”

“We All Eat has been a great blessing to us as a small business. During the pandemic time, it afforded us to stay ahead while also helping people eat.”

“The program is very impactful for my business. It is truly a blessing to the owners and the community. During these trying times, the assistance this program has brought to our community is unmatched. Thankful to Fort Bend County and most of all, The Black Expo, for birthing this program.”

Texas Black Expo Joins Fort Bend County to Launch We All Eat Program to Help Local Residents and Restaurants Impacted by COVID-19

by Jeffrey L. Boney | October 23, 2020 | 0 comment

ABOVE: (L to R) Fort Bend County Precinct 2 Commissioner Grady Prestage, Texas Black Expo Founder Jerome Love, Darryl Austin, LaTayne Bruce, and State Rep. Ron Reynolds

The state of Texas is currently facing one of the largest spikes in food insecurity in the state's history, leading to a growth in demand for food assistance thanks to the COVID-19 pandemic. The COVID-19 pandemic has not only impacted the health of individuals across Texas, but it has severely crippled local restaurants, food suppliers and producers who are feeling the negative effects of the pandemic as well.

Fort Bend Co. Combats Food Insecurity with We All Eat Program that Helps Residents, Restaurants

Oct 19, 2020

In an effort to combat food insecurity and provide an economic stimulus to local restaurants, Jerome Love, founder of Texas Black Expo has partnered with Fort Bend County to launch the We All Eat program. A press conference announcing the program will take place Monday, October 19, 2020, at 10:00 a.m. at Sugar's Cajun Cuisine, located at 3424 FM 1092 Rd #290, Missouri City, TX 77459.

Texas is currently facing one of the largest spikes in food insecurity in the state's history, leading to a growth in demand for food assistance thanks to the COVID-19 pandemic. Additionally, local restaurants and food suppliers and producers are also feeling the negative effects of the pandemic as well. According to the Texas Restaurant Association, an estimated 30 percent of restaurants will be forced to close as a result of COVID. Without a solution, this could have a devastating impact on the Fort Bend County community.

Conclusion

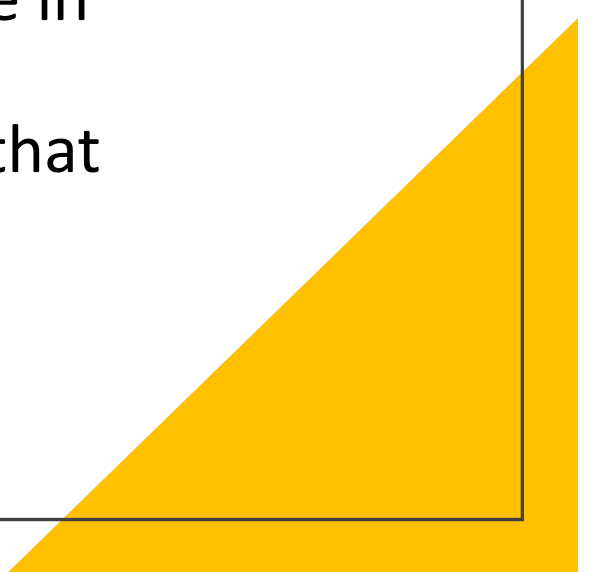

Conclusion 1:

The We All Eat program has been an effective solution to the problem of COVID-19 pandemic-related food insecurity, making a significant impact on the sustainability and quality of life of Fort Bend County residents.

Conclusion 2:

The We All Eat program played a critical role in helping Fort Bend County restaurants keep their doors open, many of which reported that they would not likely still be in business without the program.

Conclusion 3:

The We All Eat program made it possible for scores of Fort Bend County residents to maintain employment during a time when unemployment was at an all-time high.

It also made it possible for restaurants to hire new workers, which was unheard of in the restaurant industry due to unprecedented restaurant closings nationwide.

Conclusion 4:

Fort Bend County's generous investment of nearly $12M to produce the We All Eat program was unique, exceptional and notable.

As a result, the County received national exposure and recognition for it as a "World Changing Idea," and local recognition for being a county that took action to care for its businesses and residents.

With Gratitude...

Texas Black Expo wishes to thank Fort Bend County for the opportunity to administer the We All Eat Texas program.

It has been an honor and a privilege to play an essential role in serving the needs of businesses and residents of Fort Bend County during this critical season.
