About the National Cyber Crime Conference

The National Cyber Crime Conference is one of the premier training events for law enforcement investigators, prosecutors, and forensic examiners in the world. The first NCCC was held in 2012. Working together with our remarkable team of instructors, keynotes, exhibitors, and partners we have grown exponentially over the past 11 years. Today the NCCC is known for its aggressive agenda, which is always packed with hundreds of sessions on the most critical topics delivered by some of the world's top cyber experts. And we offer this training for low cost in light of the resource challenges we all face every day.

Attendance at the NCCC is restricted to actively employed law enforcement/prosecutorial agency investigators, forensic examiners, prosecutors and respective support personnel. Those who do not satisfy the criteria will receive email notification that their registration is declined and a refund of payment.

Agenda. As detailed above, we are known for an agenda that features hundreds of sessions. Consequently, our agenda is typically not finalized until 2-3 weeks prior to the Conference. By that point the NCCC will be sold out and there will be a long wait list. We recommend that you not wait to see the final agenda prior to registering.

Registration Details. Please register using only your agency-issued, official email address. Please also take a moment to review your registration information. This information will be printed on your official NCCC credentials which must be worn onsite.

Registration Fee. Your registration fee covers the cost for attending the regular and plenary training sessions at the NCCC as well as morning coffee and pastries, lunch, and snacks each day of the event. Travel, per diem, lodging, and other costs are not covered. To receive an invoice to pay by check or purchase order, please email lcaputonccc@mass.gov.

Lodging. The 2023 NCCC will be held at the Four Points by Sheraton in Norwood (1125 Boston-Providence Turnpike, Norwood, Massachusetts). The Four Points is currently sold out. There are several other hotels in the area within walking or driving distance.

Airports. For those planning travel, the conference site is easily through either Logan International Airport in Boston or T.F. Green International Airport in Providence, Rhode Island.

Exhibitors. We are currently only accepting attendee registrations. If you are interested in exhibiting at the 2023 NCCC, please email the NCCC team at lcaputonccc@mass.gov. We are developing the prospectus now and will be opening Exhibitor registration in January of 2023.

Thank you again for your interest. We look forward to seeing you at the 12th Anniversary of the National Cyber Crime Conference.
