Who We Are & What We Do

Afterschool Arts Academy

The Afterschool Arts Academy is an after-school fine arts program designed to reach youth in their most critical hours. The Academy is created for kids ages 5 to 13 that have a desire to build on their interest for the arts. We pick students up from school daily, bring them safely to our facility, provide them with a healthy snack, offer homework assistance, and engage them in the arts. The goal of Edison Arts Foundation's Afterschool Arts Academy is to provide underserved, economically disadvantaged, and foster care youth and teens ages 5 to 13 with enhanced after school activities through performing arts and learning enrichment. Every child has the opportunity to find enjoyment in achieving something great, while developing the social and life skills of success.

ANDance Jr. Company

Alice Nealie Dance Junior Company (ANDance) is a pre-professional dance company that prepares young dancers for career paths in dance. Established in 2011, the company has been a self-esteem building, confidence strengthening entity since its genesis. ANDance equips young dancers, ages 7-18 years old, with performance-based dance company experience while capturing from each member skills that cross-over to any discipline or study, such as diligence, dedication, responsibility, creative exploration, and leadership.

Black History Month: UnCovering the Legacy

During the entire Month of February, Edison Arts Foundation partners with local artists and government to recognize Black History and Black Present with weekly celebrations and community engagement! In honor of Black History Month, we call for artists to create or reimagine works that center around the theme of Black History and Black Present. By showcasing creative content from black artists and allies, sharing our stories, and paying tribute to other trailblazers; we set to galvanize our community to be a part of conversations that stretch our understanding and ultimately inspire action.

Who We Are & What We Do

Lauren Anderson Ballet Master Class Series

LABMCS is an exceptional annual program for Intermediate/Advanced level dancers, ages 12-18 years old. This program is a 9-month artistic and educational series taught by ballet legend Lauren Anderson, the FIRST African-American prima ballerina of a major ballet company, Houston Ballet. Each fall we award FULL scholarships to committed dancers who have a desire to build upon their technical foundation. In this high-value program, dancers have the opportunity to train with the Ballet Master completely FREE of charge. Ms. Anderson instills not only dance technique, but she also develops confident youth while teaching them to believe in themselves and never give up.

Who We Are & What We Do

Summer Theatre Arts Repertory

Summer Theatre Arts Repertory (S.T.A.R.) is for youth ages 7-17 who desire to build on their love and passion for the performing arts. S.T.A.R. provides the performance and technical combination of theatre, music and dance while continuing education with daily reading and academic activities. S.T.A.R. culminates with a full-scale production, allowing all participants the opportunity to showcase what they have learned. S.T.A.R. consists of 2 four-week instructional periods. Each participant is engaged daily in classes that teach and strengthen the basics of theatre, dance, and vocals. S.T.A.R. strives to motivate participants toward the spirit of excellence.

Edison Cultural Arts Center

The Edison Arts Foundation is set to develop the Fort Bend District Town Center, a mixed-use economic community revitalization development in Fort Bend Houston. The center will blend residential, retail, entertainment, educational, cultural and performing arts into one, thus creating a place to live, learn, work, and play. We partner to provide vitally needed programming in arts and culture, job creation, outdoor green space, youth development, affordable housing, quality healthcare, and public art commissions. The Edison Cultural Arts Center is a unique community hub that will transform Fort Bend Houston into an active and resilient community with the Arts at its core.
